Summary

- BET was flat yesterday; BET –FI loss some of the previous day's advance; the market opened in the red today;
   futures indicate that expectations in Europe and US are for a rise in stocks today
- The Treasury sold 2.1 bn RON in government securities (2Y, 5Y) more than the 600 mn RON planned amount;
   after a few weeks of continuous rise, yields fell
- FDI stood at 1.3 bn EUR during the first 10M, higher by 20% YoY
- The leu gained 1% to the euro yesterday

BET was flat yesterday and the indexes finished mixed, on lower equities turnover. BET-FI lost some of the previous day's advance (-0.58%). European and US markets finished in the red as well, but index futures expect a turn of event today.

The leu gained 1% to the euro yesterday, in a move that was not correlated with its peers'evolution or with money market rates.

The Treasury sold 2.1 bn RON yesterday in 5Y and 2Y bonds, much more than the planned amount of 600 mn RON. The average accepted yields finally declined after a few weeks of continuous rise. The average accepted yields for the 2Y bonds were 6.44%, a touch lower than at the beginning of December (6.45%). In the case of the 5Y bonds, the decline was 9 bp, to 6.57%, compared to a similar bond auction held at the end of November. It looks like in the case of the 5Y bond auction all the bid amount was allocated. Last year in the first quarter, non-residents government securities acquisitions prompted the leu to appreciate sharply and a similar move cannot be ruled out in the present, especially since yields are attractive and the imminence of a new IMF deal diminishes the country risk.

The current account deficit shrank to 4.3 bn EUR in the first 10M, compared to 4.9 bn EUR last year in the same period. This is explained by a reduced deficit of the income balance (by 469 mn EUR), a larger surplus of the current transfers (+429 mn EUR) and of the services balance (+230 mn EUR). The net FDI stood at 1.3 bn EUR, higher by 20% YoY.
