Summary

- BVB indexes finished in the red yesterday but declines were much softer compared to major European equities' markets where losses varied around 1% on concerns regarding central banks' stimulus
- Bond yields are now above 5% again, after they reached this year's low in May
- Money market rates slid yesterday; 3M ROBOR lost 18 bp.

BVB indexes finished in the red yesterday, in line with international markets. While BET retreated only marginally (-0.03%), major European indexes' losses varied around 1%. What hit shares was the concern that stimulus measures offered by central banks are being scaled down. Bank of Japan's decision to pause for the moment and take fresh measures in the future when bond yields would spike again was against many investors' expectations who were hoping that the Central Bank would curb bonds' volatility.

A busy schedule is in line for domestic energy companies: Hidroelectrica, the state owned power plant may exit its insolvency as soon as the end of June, according to its manager Remus Borza. Also, the state owned nuclear power plant Nuclearelectrica is scheduled for a 10% IPO next month. At the end of April, 13.4% of the net asset value of FP were holdings in Hidroelectrica and 4.3% were holdings in Nuclearelectrica. Both companies are on IMF's list of state companies which need an efficiency boost and which were recommended to sell minority stakes to private investors.

Money market rates came down yesterday. ROBOR ON touched 3.16%, falling by 125 bp in a day. On Monday, the Central Bank injected a nearly double amount at the weekly repo auction, compared to the previous week. 3M ROBOR is higher by 35 bp compared to the previous week. Government securities' yields continued the uptrend (except for the 6M T-bills). Bond yields moved up by 6-10 bp in the day. No other auction is scheduled on the primary market for this week so we are looking for next week to see whether the appetite for bonds revives, given that the last tender saw a good demand. Bond prices fell in the last month and we currently see bond yields again above 5%.
