Summary

- American indices reached new record highs after Janet Yellen's Senate hearing. As expected, the nominee for the Fed's chair has defended the idea of keeping the Fed's current loose monetary policy.
- Moody's has downgraded four out of the eight biggest US banks: Bank of New York, Goldman Sachs, JPMorgan, and Morgan Stanley.
- Asia's indices closed considerably higher this morning.

Investors throughout the world focussed on the testimony of the Fed's nominated chair, Janet Yellen, and the fulfilment of optimistic expectations has further strengthened Western Europe's stock markets. The Stoxx600 upped by 0.8%, the CAC40 added 1%, the FTSE 100 climbed 0.5% higher, and the DAX advanced 1.1%. A winner of the day, France's Bouygues rallied 6.2% thanks to a better-than-expected earnings report. Of the Stoxx 600 names, the winner of the day was Britain's oil and gas producer Ophir Energy, with 10% rally, after selling part of its natural gas producing unit in Tanzania. At sector level, European utility companies saw the strongest fall as RWE forecast a 40-45% fall in 2014 net profit, which slashed RWE's stock price by 5.1%, and that of its peer EON by 1.7% yesterday.

US indices continued their upward move after the optimistic expectations about the Fed chair nominee Janet Yellen's testimony at Senate were met. Matching expectations, Janet Yellen defended the idea of sustaining the Fed's asset purchase programme, but found the US economy's growth and the labour market still fragile. The S&P went up 0.5%, the Dow added 0.4% and the Nasdaq Composite inched up 0.2%. The S&P's year-to-date gain is at 26%, suggesting a best year in a decade. The index's forward-looking P/E rate is 16.2, way higher than the 14 level of the past five years. During her hearing, Janet Yellen said that she could not see any sign of a bubble on the stock markets, despite the significant appreciation. Nine out of the S&P's ten sector indices have risen yesterday, with utilities seeing the strongest increase (0.9%). The S&P's Supercomposite Homebuilding index rallied 3%. Thursday's strongest corporate performers were Office Depot (+4.5%), Western Digital Corp. (+4.7%) and Tyco International (+2.4%). Office Depot benefited from an analyst's recommendation, WDC gained from an announcement on higher dividend payment than before, while Tyco's surge stemmed from better-than-expected earnings report. One of the biggest losers of the day was Cisco, whose 11% plunge was triggered by worse-than-expected sales and profit forecast. HP plummeted 5.4%, and Jabil Circuit fell 3.9%, dragging the S&P technology sector index into the negative territory.

Moody's has lowered the rating on four of America's eight biggest banks: Bank of New York was cut from Aa3 to A1, Goldman Sachs from A3 to Baa1, JPMorgan from A2 to A3, and Morgan Stanley from Baa1 to Baa2. The rating agency cited the rules US banking regulators had been drafting, which allow winding down even the biggest financial companies in case of crisis, in preference to saving them from taxpayers' money.
