Summary

- Monday's US trading benefited from the improvement in global investment sentiment, only the Russia-Ukraine conflict may cause headache.
- Google has bought a drone-making company.
- Ukrainian savers' confidence in the banking system has shaken; Ukraine's central bank has raised its base rate.

American investors' buoyancy was boosted by the encouraging figures in Citigroup's first-quarter report and the fresh retail sales statistics on Monday. Gaining 0.9% made the Dow the most successful US index. The S&P500 and the Nasdaq100 climbed 0.8% higher, and the Russell2000 upped 0.4%. Of the S&P's sector indices, energy made the strongest gain (+1.4%). Amid the upbeat mood in Europe, all major indices advanced with the exception of the ATX (-1.1%) and the IBEX35 (-0.2%). Gaining 0.4% made the CAC40 the top gainer; while the FTSE 100, the Stoxx600, Germany's DAX added 0.3% each.

Following Facebook, Google has also bought a dronemaker company. The internet giant's plan with drones is the same as that of Facebook (to deliver internet access all over the world), but the solar-powered drones will also be suitable for additional tasks, such as surveying and helping areas hit by natural disasters.

Investors' improving sentiment may be soured by the developments in the Russia-Ukraine crisis. It is indicative of the capital flight that bank clients withdrew UAH 26 billion or 5.9% of the deposits in March, according to the central bank's data. The withdrawal of capital is motivated by the instable political situation, and the UAH's weakening. In a bid to resolve the current unfavourable situation, Ukrainian banks raise interest rates, by paying more than 19% interest rate on deposits. Last night, the National Bank of Ukraine raised its benchmark rate by 300 basis points, to 9.5% and lifted the overnight loan rate by 700 basis points, to 14.5%.

Because of China's growth developments, most of Asia's indices closed today's session in the red. The Hang Seng dropped 1.3%, the SSEC was 1.4% down; only the Nikkei rallied (+0.6%).

Today both Europe and the USA will release important data. Consumer price indices from many European countries and Germany's economic sentiment index will be out in Europe. America will publish CPI as well as the New York Fed manufacturing index.
