Summary

- The EUR/RON ended last week slightly higher, at 4.45.
- The Treasury holds an auction today, aiming to sell RON 500 mn via 3.4Y bonds.
- Romanian stocks mostly registered modest gains.

The RON lost some ground compared to both the EUR and the USD on Friday, similarly to the HUF. Thus the EUR/RON climbed slightly higher, ending last week around 4.45. Romania's currency weakened more against the USD, pushing the pair to 4.18. On Friday, the European common currency depreciated significantly versus the US dollar, after the ECB's President Mario Draghi suggested that further easing measures may come in order to lift the eurozone's inflation rate.

Today the Treasury holds the last auction of the month, aiming to sell RON 500 mn debt in 3.4Y bonds. During November, the Treasury borrowed RON 2.70 bn through regular auctions and around RON 0.23 bn via supplementary sessions of non-competitive offers. On weekly basis the yield curve became steeper, decreasing by 7 bps at the short end, while the yield on the 10Y bond inched up 2 bps.

This week, among others the NBR's monetary statistics will see the light of day, including non-government loan and deposit data. In addition, the NIS releases unemployment figures for October, while November's confidence indicators also will be released.

On Friday, the BET closed on a positive note, gaining almost 0.4%, but it was not enough to offset earlier losses in the previous days. As a result, Romania's main equity index slipped 0.8% on weekly basis. Among the ten components of the BET, the shares of BRD could add the most (1.1%) on Friday, followed closely by the BVB (+1.0%) and the SNP (+1.0%), while only two companies were in the red: Electrica (-0.3%) and Fondul Proprietatea (-0.1%). At the same time, the key European indices changed mixed, showing small movements.
