Summary

- Friday' trading was buoyant on both sides of the Atlantic.
- This morning's release of China's Caixin manufacturing PMI was disappointing
- Nigeria requested help from the IMF and African Development Bank.

In Friday's positive sentiment on Europe's stock markets, the Stoxx600 and the CAC40 gained 2.2% each, the DAX upped 1.6%, and the FTSE100 rallied 2.6%. Yields on 2Y and 10Y German bonds were 4-5 basis points down. In its cost cutting programme, HSBC will not hire new employees or raise wages until 2017, BBC reported.

US stock exchanges fared well on Friday. The DJIA and the S&P500 advanced 2.5% each, and the Russel2000 surged 3.2%. US 2Y-10Y bond yields sank 1-5 basis points. Today Puerto Rico may publish the detailed plan on restructuring the country's USD 70 billion debt. Argentina borrowed USD 5 billion from Wall Street banks, to bolster its FX reserves; the country's government bonds will secure the loans.

Asia's stock indices moved mixed this morning. The Nikkei was seen 2% higher, while the Hang Seng (+0.5%) and the SSEC (1.8%) stood in the red. One reason for the drop in China's stock indices may be the fresh Caixin manufacturing PMI, which was at 48.4. An analysis by BofA found that 1% devaluation of the yuan (CNY) reduces commodity prices by 0.6%, and this correlation is particularly strong for copper and aluminium.

The Brent oil price was 1.6% higher at one point this morning, and it surged 16% over last week. Nigeria, an OPEC member, asked for the IMF's and the African Development Bank's help to plug its budget holes caused by the cheap oil. The emergency loan may amount to USD 3.5 billion.

In Friday's trading the USD appreciated almost 1% against the EUR and 0.1% versus the JPY.

On Friday the Bank of Japan unexpectedly cut its benchmark rate into negative territory. Inflation in the eurozone was 0.4% as expected, but core inflation exceeded forecasts by 1%. America's Q4 GDP, at 0.7%, was short of expectations in quarter/quarter comparison. In contrast, the 55.6 reading of the Chicago purchasing managers' index has surpassed predictions.

Today manufacturing purchasing managers' indices will be out in Asia and in the eurozone; later the USA will publish personal income and consumption data as well as construction spending statistics.
