Global Daily Report

GLOBAL DAILY REPORT - 7 AUGUST 2017

Summary

- Friday's better-than-expected job market data helped stock markets and the USD.
- The Dow hit new high in Friday.

The major stock indices of the world closed higher on Friday. America's labour market data brought about supportive sentiment on both sides of the Atlantic. In Europe, the Stoxx600 index advanced 1%, with all of its sector indices climbing higher, headed by the food and construction industries as well as tour operators, while insurance and real property names were among the laggards. Swiss Re, a largest insurance company in the world dived 3.1% after revealing shrinking profit in its Q2 report on Friday. The Royal Bank of Scotland's share price grew by 2% as its profit had beaten expectations.

In the USA, the major benchmarks climbed 0.2–0.3% higher on Friday. The Dow hit new all-time high and the S&P500 was one point shy of breaking record. Of the S&P's sector indices, the financial and the raw material sectors outperformed the headline index by a large margin, as did energy, real estate and technology sectors, to a lesser extent.

Asia's stock markets opened on a bright note, benefiting from Friday's cheering US employment data and supported by local figures such as Toyota's earnings report in Japan. The Nikkei gained 0.5%, and the Shanghai Composite added 0.3% this morning. Toyota's share price shot up 1.8% after publishing better-than-expected quarterly figures. Europe's stock markets were supported by the firming US dollar (and the weakening euro) – the EUR/USD sank from near-1.190 levels to 1.175, before a correction took it to 1.177. The Bloomberg Dollar Spot Index rose by 0.5% as the greenback appreciated 0.8% versus the EUR and 0.7% against the GBP.

In developed markets 10Y government bond yields went up: Germany's 10Y bund yield upped 2 bps, that on the UK bond one rose by 3 bps, and US 10Y note yield added 4 bps.

On commodity markets, oil prices increased (WTI: +1.1%, Brent: +0.8%). Silver contracted by 2%, while industrial metal prices changed but trivially. In today's Asian trading, iron ore price shot up more than 7% on the Singapore exchange, according to a Bloomberg report.

Employment in the USA grew stronger last month than had been expected. Non-farm payrolls grew by 209,000 in July, slightly missing June's 231,000 level. The unemployment rate sank to a 16-year low of 4.3%, in line with forecasts. Manufacturing created 16,000 new jobs in July, jobs wrong-footing economists who had predicted growth of 3,000.

Today's releases include the Leading Economic Index from Japan and statistics on Germany's industrial production in June. The communication of Fed officials may be also worth checking.
