Summary

- The mandatory private pension scheme could become optional from 2018, Romania's PM said yesterday.
- In July, net average wages grew by 15.1% YoY; public wages went ballistic (+30% YoY).
- Yesterday the EUR/RON remained near 4.60; the EUR/USD climbed after the ECB's policy meeting.
- The Treasury borrowed RON 500 mn in 2.6Y bonds, as planned.
- Romanian stocks mostly closed in the red yesterday.

Romania's government may make the mandatory private pension scheme (pillar 2) optional starting from 2018, Prime Minister Mihai Tudose said yesterday. According to the data from the end of June, almost seven million people were contributing to the second pillar of the system, while the value of assets administered by mandatory pension funds reached RON 36.1 bn.

In July, the growth rate of net wages accelerated, posting 15.1% YoY annual advance, following June's 14.5% gain, the latest report of the NIS showed. The accelerating growth pace in July was mainly due to the public sector, where wages got further steam, lifting the annual advance to a ballistic 30%. At the same time, private sector wages grew rapidly as well (+11.5% YoY, up from June's +11.3%). Impressive gains in salaries are set to keep households' consumption growth at elevated levels. We note that households' expenditure expanded by 8.0% YoY in Q2, after rising 7.4% in the previous quarter, registering the largest contribution to Romania's stellar GDP growth in Q2 (5.9% YoY).

The EUR/RON showed little variation on Thursday, remaining close to the 4.60 psychological level. Nonetheless, Romania's leu firmed around 0.8% compared to the greenback, as the EUR/USD climbed higher. This came after the European Central Bank left its benchmark interest rates unchanged, taking an optimistic view of the eurozone's economic outlook.

On Thursday, the Treasury sold the planned RON 500 mn in bonds with maturity in April 2020. The bid-to-cover ratio was at 2.1x and the average yield stood at 1.85%.

The majority of the BET's components closed lower yesterday, with Medlife dipping the most (-1.9%). Accordingly, the BET gave up 0.5%, with only the shares of Digi Communications finishing in positive territory (+1.3%).
