Global Daily Report

Summary

- Thursday's trading sentiment was fairly positive on global markets
- The US House of Representatives passed part of the tax overhaul bill
- The USD pared some of its losses to the euro
- Tesla unveiled its new electric truck and the Roadster sports car

Investment sentiment was fairly positive on the stock markets of the world on Thursday. In Europe, the DAX advanced 0.5%, the CAC40 rallied 0.7%, and the FTSE100 added 0.2%. On the other side of the Atlantic, the S&P500 grew by 0.8%, and the NASDAQ100 surged 1.3%.

Despite the supportive external environment, the mood in Central and Eastern Europe was rather mixed. Warsaw's WIG20 edged down, and the BUX fell 1%.

There was little volatility on currency markets yesterday. The US dollar firmed 0.2% against the euro.

The risk appetite on US markets can be attributed to the fact that the House of Representatives voted to slash the corporate tax profit from 35% to 20%, and reduce the number PIT (personal income tax) brackets to four. The bill is pending on the Senate's approval, so it will take a while before it is enacted.

The Brent crude oil's price climbed 0.6% higher. On precious metal market, the price of gold barely changed, and that of silver upped 0.6%.

On Thursday Elon Musk unveiled Tesla's new, electric truck. Tesla Semi's parameters by far exceed expectations, in terms of both range (805 kms, or 500 miles), and acceleration to 100 km/hour (in 20 seconds, with full load). What is more, its fuel and maintenance cost is just one-fifth of that of its petrol-fuelled rivals. Another huge surprise was the new Tesla Roadster sports car, which stands out with its range and acceleration. That said, neither models are set to go into production before 2019.
